Attachment 3.0 - Description of Services

Processing of Electronic Recyclables - COM2 recycles a variety of electronics and enables businesses and consumers to meet their social and legal obligations in the treatment of end-of life electronics. By allowing COM2 to safely process your e-waste, reuse of the toxic materials they contain can be provided to various industries as raw material, avoiding landfills and endangering the environment.

Processing of CRT Glass Recyclables - The introduction of flat panel LCD monitors and televisions has lead to an overwhelming cathode ray tube (CRT) disposal challenge. It's estimated that more than 57 million television and computer monitors will be sold annually in the US, replacing CRT based systems. COM2 provides the full recycling of CRTs at our Carol Stream, Illinois processing facility. Our process separates the front panel non-leaded glass from the lead based tube funnel of CRTs used in televisions and computer monitors. After our phosphor cleaning procedure, we separate the glass and process it to produce cleaned furnace ready glass cullet. The COM2 CRT Glass-to-Clean Glass process recovers thousands of pounds of leaded glass daily to eliminate the danger of improper landfill disposal.
